EDUCATIONAL NOTES

NEWS CORRESPONDENT ENTERTAINED AT COLORADO BOULVARD SCHOOL

By Walt. Le Noir Church

If you never spent a joyous half hour in the Colorado Boulevard Grammar school watching the brilliant little ideas there learning to shoot so wonderfully well you have missed one of the most delightful treats in Glendale.

The teacher of the old needs be wise.

The teacher of matured youths and maidens needs be wiser.

But the teacher of infants needs be the wisest of them all.

Did not the Great Teacher say: "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not; for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

There is meaning in that simple saying too deep for him who runs to read.

The writer unexpectedly dropped into the room, at least peaked in the open door at Miss Ida M. Waite teaching "tonality" to a room full of cherry little first graders. Her back was toward the door, but if there were any secret signs and passwords being given to those initiated in sharps and flats I had no chance at all to get wise, for almost as soon as the door was darkened, a sweet little faerie voice called the warning, "Oh, Miss Waite, there's a man."

But in a trice the intruder was seated, and the cherub concert went on. Three or four notes were given. "What is that?" "Whip-poor-will," eagerly came from a dozen pairs of rosebud lips.

Then they sang it. If the Whip-poorwill bird had heard it, he would have been proud of his own song as it was sung there. Then, too, perhaps he would not have been so lonely. You know the legend that the Whip-poor-will's song sounds so sad because he cannot find his lost mate.

Then we had one even prettier still in which several little artists sang a verse, coming down the aisle to the front and standing by Miss Waite, whose encouraging arm or hand was sought. It was the dear old song of many childhoods. You sang it; so did I, and I wish we could sing it again, once more, as we used to—well, before our voices changed. I remembered the words. Do you?

"Lady Bug, Lady Bug, how do you?
Lady Bug, Lady Bug, fly away,— shoo."

You ought to have heard it.

I was much interested in their analysis of words into their root sounds, which give one an idea how our alphabet was formed. Then they could so nicely do the sympathetic work of forming words from their monosyllabic sounds showing how our language grew. Nothing like that taught when I learned my a, b, abs; or slowly spelled out "T-h-i-s i-s a h-e-n." Then followed it up with what we all know was a delusive fiction after our own case of hen-fever developed: "Nice eggs she lays for us every day."

Frank Titus, Pam Schonfeld, Rebecca Brandt, Shall Poston Reaben, Charles Wilson and others gave some delightful little readings. Among them was one in which several took part. It seems that a soldier started bravely off to the wars. He met a drum who asked "Where are you going?" "I am going to fight for the king." Before the drum realized what it was doing, he had marched off with that soldier to fight for the king, also. Then they two met a sword and a bugle and persuaded them to enlist, likewise. I do not remember if they met up with a gun and got him into the trouble. But I rather suspect that old song originated long before Mr. Gun was big enough to do any war work.

Rebecca Brandt can pick out a lazy letter in many words, at sight, you know—those letters which are just too lazy to make any noise at all when their word is pronounced.

Joseph Snell recited "Little Boy Blue" and looked the part, that is, after Little Boy Blue was wide awake; Little Joe did not have his blue coat nor his horn, so we do not know whether he searched the cow from the meadow or the sheep from the corn.

The five vowels hid in their five small houses, but that did not prevent sharp little eyes and clear little voices from seeing the signs above each, and giving it the exact sound. I had entered college before I had learned to do that stunt so well.

Marjory Reed, Melville Walker, Dana Furbeck, Alvin Gilbert, William Finley, Ozro Anderson, Clara Russell, Fred Playter, Wilhelmina Rieth and others did some very creditable counting. Then, to rest from the lesson fun, they played basketball with Miss Waite. Louis Cohen, Edward Loeffler and Rebecca Gillis told about a dear little plant that lay in the heart of a seed till the music of the raindrops and the kiss of the sunshine waked it. Then it rose up looking so interested to see what the wonderful outside world might be like.

Then followed exercises in training attention and developing the use of the association of ideas. They were asked to look at any picture on the walls and tell what they saw and what it made them think of. The results showed good work in both teacher and pupils.

One bright little chap, I think it was Frank Titus, unless I am as mistaken as the man in the old story who "got those children mixed." But whoever it was delighted me by saying of the Swans-in-the-Lake picture, "I see beautiful blue and green shadows in the water." That is the kind of education that educates.

I was so pleased with my entertainment that my gratitude impelled me to tell them about sixteen little Esquimaux children at Nome, Alaska, who had never seen a Christmas tree till we sent a couple of dog teams and a young missionary two hundred miles over the ice and brought them a fine one which we loaded with presents and lighted by little candles one of the Sunday school teachers had been thoughtful enough to bring from Seattle. Imagine a first Christmas tree.

GUICE SINGS

SERMON MESSAGE "DOES GOD PLAY HIDE AND SEEK WITH MEN?"

The interest in the revival mission at the First Methodist church, which was evident Sunday, manifested itself again last night. A large number of singers met Mr. Guice, the leader in song, at 7 o'clock for organization purposes. With the progress of the meeting the choir promises to become a large factor in the work. Mr. Guice captured the people with his spirit and singing.

Mr. Snudden spoke on the subject, "Lights and Half Lights, or Does God Play Hide and Seek with Men?" He took as his text the words of Christ, "All things that I heard from my father I have made known unto you," John 15:15. He first told of two paintings by Sternberg, the one a gipsy girl and the other "The Crucifixion;" how Zinzendorf, founder of the Monravian Brethren, was led to dedicate his life to God by seeing "The Crucifixion" and how John Wesley was influenced by the Moravians. He then said: "And these things occurred because Christ told all that He heard from the Father." The value of any message to the world must be measured by three things, the substance of the message, is it trivial or is it of importance? the messenger, is he a man of honor, can his word be depended upon? the sender of the message, has he knowledge and authority-

The teachings of Christ are found in the four gospels, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, and are twofold, the things he said and the life he lived, and in comparison with these the words of other teachers, ancient or modern, sink into insignificance. Since Christ made known all that he knew there need be no guess work about your relation to God. There was no evasion on his part. He did not dodge the most far reaching question propounded to him. When He says "Except one be born from above he cannot see the kingdom of God" men hedge and dodge. You may try to juggle with the truth, but you cannot make it other than it is.

Christ had no mental reservations. He called a spade a spade, a lie a lie, dishonesty by its name; he put on hypocrisy its own label, he called adultery adultery. Sin to him was sin. And you cannot perfume it and make it otherwise. He was no trimmer. And when you think seriously of life and God you would not want him had he been a trimmer. When asked concerning rules for conduct he went to the root of the matter, 'Thou shalt love God perfectly and thy neighbor as thyself.' Mark it, not thy neighbor's wife or thy neighbor's husband, not thy neighbor's goods or thy neighbor's business. Some people love their neighbor so much that they would like to own their property. Men undermine the business of their fellows. Are your children your neighbor's? If you believe they are facing toward the judgment you fathers and mothers ought to be the chums of your sons

ENTERTAIN MINISTERS

REV. AND MRS. W. E. EDMONDS AT HOME TO CLERGY AND WIVES

Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Edmonds entertained Monday evening the ministers and their wives of Glendale, Casa Verdugo and Tropico, the gathering being in honor of the three new pastors, Rev. C. A. Cole, Rev. Vernon H. Cowsert and Rev. C. R. Norcross. The custom of entertaining and formally welcoming the new members was inaugurated by Rev. and Mrs. Edmonds five years ago and a very delightful evening was spent on this as on other occasions. After social greetings a very enjoyable reading was given by Miss Minnie Sinclair and a piano solo was pleasingly rendered by Miss Clara Waugh. Vocal numbers were given by Mrs. Zetta Gibbons in her usual charming manner. Greetings were extended by Rev. Edmonds and the formal welcome to the new pastors made by Rev. Willisford, who is the oldest member of the Glendale Ministerial association in term of service, which was responded to by Rev. Cole, the most recent addition to the ministerial ranks. The program was interspersed with impromptu stories by the reverend gentlemen and it was surprising to note the ability they displayed in story telling. Delicious refreshments were enjoyed at the close of the very pleasant evening. Those present were Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Edmonds, Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Willisford, Rev. and Mrs. Dudley B. Snudden, Rev. and Mrs. C R. Norcross, Rev and Mrs. Vernon H. Cowsert, Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Cole, Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Mottern, Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Johnson, Rev. Julius Soper, Rev. Irving C. DR. DUNGAN ARRIVES HOME TOMORROW

Dr. I. H. Durfee received a telegram this morning stating that Dr. and Mrs. D. R. Dungan will arrive on the 9:45 train in Los Angeles tomorrow morning. The telegram also states that Dr. Dungan is gradually on the improve. Dr. Dungan, it will be remembered, left Glendale a few months ago on a pleasure trip to Honolulu, intending also to go to Australia. En route to Honolulu he met with an accident on shipboard, and was in a serious condition for some weeks after arriving in Honolulu, his life at times being despaired of. His recovery was made slower on account of his advanced age, he being past eighty. His friends here have been eager to receive news of his progress and will be delighted to know that he has been able to return to his Glendale home. He has been very homesick and has been very anxious to return. While Dr. and Mrs. Dungan will be at their home on Lomita avenue tomorrow afternoon, owing to his weakened condition and after the long trip, it is hardly likely that he will be able to see any one, and it is suggested by Dr. Durfee that it would be very cheering and helpful to receive postcard messages from his friends on his return. Dr. Durfee will go to Los Angeles to meet Dr. and Mrs. Dungan and will take charge of the doctor on his arrival.

BIRD AND FLOWER CLUB

The usual meeting of the Bird and Flower club was held Saturday last when a trip along the Wash was taken, the wild flora and birds being studied. Ever since last June one whole day a week has been given by the leaders of this club, Mrs. H. C. Ackley and Mrs. Nanno Woods, to initiating the young people and adults into an appreciation of mother nature. Increasing duties make it impossible for these two ladies to give quite so much time to weekly trips. Therefore, it has been decided to hold the Bird and Flower club once a month, on the first Saturday of each month.

The next meeting will accordingly be held on Saturday, the third of March. For that occasion a study of wild flowers will be made, the folloying members having agreed to hand in reports as hereby stated. Ruth Head, suncups; Mrs. Nanno Woods, lupines; Dorothy Head, gilia; Wilfred White, birds' eye; Dorothy Woods, wild pea; Kathleen Woods, cream cups; Mrs. Pearson, Johnny-jumpups; Miss Olive Williams, shooting stars; Miss Hamilton, wild currant; Mrs. H. C. Ackley, Indian paint brush.

WEATHER FORECAST—Unsettled weather; probably showers tonight and Wednesday. Westerly winds.

CHAMBER COMMERCE

WALT. LE NOIR CHURCH APPOINTED SECRETARY FOR ONE YEAR

The executive committee of Glendale Chamber of Commerce held a meeting at city hall Monday evening at 8 o'clock, President William John Clendenin in the chair.

On motion of Mr. Faries, chairman of the membership committee, the executive committee confirmed the action of the sub-committee, consisting of the president and vice president, appointing Walt. Le Noir Church secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce for one year from date and to act as general manager under the executive committee, being duly authorized to collect membership fees, dues and any other moneys to be paid the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, it being understood that membership fee is $1 with monthly dues of fifty cents and life membership of $25, which forever exempts from payment of monthly or other dues.

It may be stated here that section V. of the by-laws provides: "Any person or firm may become a member of this association."

Mr. Church, being present, entered upon his duties.

The president informally reported that all known obligations of Glendale Chamber of Commerce were paid, and there is in the treasury about $8 with which to begin the new work.

Mr. Clendenin, chairman of the committee on selection of an office, reported that a temporary office had been arranged for in the front room of the offices of the Montrose railroad, 1111 Broadway. This was approved by Mr. Cowan, the other member of the committee on office, and confirmed by the executive committee.

The subject of a banquet to be given by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce was informally discussed and left for future consideration.

WALT. LE NOIR CHURCH,
Secretary.

A very delightful dinner party was enjoyed Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Lew B. Fitzgerald, 803 Adams St., Glendale, in honor of Miss Helen Kane of Highland Park, a popular bride-elect of the season. The house was beautifully decorated in American Beauty roses and ferns. In the center of the dining table were two large wedding bells with a bower of bride's roses and ferns. A fine course dinner was served at 7 o'clock with favors and many dainty dishes and ices. CONRAD VULCANIZING COMPANY MOVES TO NEW LOCATION

The Conrad Vulcanizing Co., formerly located in the Ford Agency Bldg., has moved to larger quarters at 1011 W. Broadway. The change was forced by lack of room to handle Mr. Conrad's rapidly increasing business.

Since locating in Glendale over a year ago Mr. Conrad has worked up a strenuous tire retread business in addition to vulcanizing and general repair work.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Miss Beatrice Gile of Tropico was the honored guest Monday evening, February 12, at a birthday surprise given by her sister, Miss Mabel Gile, at the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Burbank, 307 Blanche avenue. Miss Gile was invited to the home of Miss Esther Baker for dinner and when she returned home she was surprised to find the rooms adorned with valentine and kewpie decorations and about twenty-eight of her friends there to receive her and extend birthday greetings. Games were enjoyed during the evening and dainty refreshments served. The birthday girl was the recipient of many pretty gifts on this happy occasion.

MOORE'S SUGGESTIONS

GLENDALE MAN HAS ORIGINAL IDEAS ABOUT PREPARING THE COUNTRY FOR WAR AT SMALL EXPENSE— PLANS TO PREVENT STEALING OF AUTOS

F. O. Moore, 1008 West Broadway, has some original ideas along certain lines. He presents the following to the readers of the News on the subject of preparedness, efficiency and economy:

The subject for your consideration is the all-important subject of preparedness, a subject that every one of you should be and will be very deeply interested in in the near future, and if you will give a few minutes of your time I will show you how this government can save millions and millions of dollars and thousands and thousands of lives. Some of those dollars are your dollars and some of the lives may be you or yours.

Millions and billions of dollars has been appropriated and spent in the defense of our country without any apparent thought of economy. They seem to hold to the old-time theory that our infantry must march hundreds of miles on foot and be lined up four deep to be mown down like wheat before a sickle, and that our cavalry men must ride horses and be out in the open, with bullets flying which excites the horses and diverts their aim, but I claim the day for long marching is practically over and that the horse cavalry will soon be a thing of the past.

I have invented what I call the auto cavalry equipment. The object of my invention is to provide an auto chassis (light cars preferred) with removable pieces of concaved sheet steel, forming body seats and fenders, with coresponding holes, so they can be removed and connected up with pins or bolts to form track for auto to cross sand, stream, ravine or other difficult places; also to be removed and used as breastworks by placing at the proper angle it will deflect the bullets of the enemy upwards. These various pieces can also be removed and used for tables, seats, shelter from rain or bed when obliged to sleep where ground is covered with water or poisonous insects prevail.

Twenty-five or thirty machines will carry one hundred men and eight or ten machine guns, and one hundred men thus equipped would be practically safe in following one thousand bandits into any kind of a country; from the fact if attacked they could be behind steel breastworks in less than a minute, and a man behind steel breastworks with a repeating gun that could not get ten of the enemy before they could get to him had better get a job shoveling sand. He is simply not a soldier

By the aid of an aeroplane to get a man on the opposite side to secure four wire cables they can cross a stream so thoroughly imbedded with quicksand that it would be impossible for a man or horse to wade across.

The cost to equip one hundred men in this manner would not exceed one fourth of what it would to equip them with horses.

The cost in time of battle would not exceed one-fourth what it would with horses.

The casualties in time of battle would not exceed one-tenth what it would with horses.

The cost in time of peace would not exceed one-tenth what it would with horses; in fact we can reduce the cost of the cavalry and infantry to one-tenth what it is at the present time, or what it will be in the future, have better protection, and save this country millions and millions of dollars and thousands and thousands of lives, forming a combination of Preparedness, Efficiency and Economy.

Now it will not be necessary to keep any great amount of machines already equipped; simply keep a liberal supply of the sheet steel and connections well distributed throughout the United States in custody of the county and city officials. Then in case of trouble they can hire or buy machines right off the street, strip them and equip them in three hours, and be prepared for any trouble that might arise.

Our state and government troops are never allowed to participate in quelling any riot until the sheriff has exhausted all his available power. And with this equipment at his command, if every able-bodied man understood military rules, there would be always loyal citizens ready to assist the sheriff in his lawful duty.

I do not advocate military training camps. They will cost millions and millions of dollars, and the chances are that the boys that are trained today will be gray-haired men before they are called on for service. I simply claim this government should send every able-bodied man a little book containing all necessary military rules; and compel each and every one of them to go before our board of education three or four times a year or as often as is found necessary and answer all questions off hand. Then in case of trouble we can rise up twenty or thirty million strong on very short notice, prepared to protect every inch of our territory, forming another combination of preparedness, efficiency and economy.

I also wish to call your attention to a plan to break up auto stealing, a plan to suppress crime and capture criminals.

I call this plan the "stop system."

The United States should have official oil stations at the cross roads on all highways ten miles or less apart, conducted similar to our postoffices, three men to each station, eight-hour shifts, but subject to be called back in case of a stop order; with motorcycles to guard detour roads.

If auto is stolen or crime committed all stations on every avenue of escape are notified by telephone and tthey throw out the stop signal.

Everybody must know it is unlawful to pass this station until the officer in charge is satisfied they are not the party wanted.

Sometimes a second will be sufficient, other times the party will have to give an account of themselves.

Criminals will know of this plan and see their avenue of escape is so well guarded it may have a tendency to keep them from committing the crime.

These oil stations will be practically self sustaining, forming another combination of preparedness, efficiency and economy.

STUDIES IN PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

By Walt. Le Noir Church

STUDY XXIV.—GLENDALE'S DEVELOPMENT

Among the most interesting of old Latin and Greek fables is one of a father on his deathbed. He called his twelve sons to him and requested each of them to break a bundle of twelve rods tied together as one. None of them could do it. Then he had the bundle untied and gave a stick to each son who easily broke it.

In union there is strength.

In dis-union there is weakness of that which might be strong.

Yes, that is an obvious platitude. But is it not true as applied to our present situation in Glendale? In going around our city, talking with business men and also with people in no business, I find a settled conviction that we should get together; and a widespread willingness to help "if there is a real concert of action for Glendale's betterment." There is just one sure way to get concert of action. That is for everybody interested to join the newly organized chamber of commerce without waiting to see who else will join.

Doubtless many readers of the News remember what a turmoil the country was in over the question of resuming specie payment.

Senator John Sherman cut the Gordian knot by saying "The way to resume is to resume."

That was so simple no one seemed to have thought of it before.

So the great problem was solved in short order.

The way for us Glendalians to get together is to get together. The chamber of commerce offers a basis on which all good citizens can unite. What the Chamber of Commerce will accomplish will depend largely upon you, and you, and other interested citizens who will as present or future members do your part. A prominent working member said at the meeting of the executive board last evening (Monday): "In case the citizens of Glendale generally should not think what we are planning to do would be for the best, under all the conditions facing us, it would be easy for them to become members of the Chamber of Commerce and vote such modifications of our program as appears to them proper. Then we who are the present workers will unite with them and help carry out what they propose to the best of our ability."

Now, is not that the very essence of getting together??

The writer was unanimously elected secretary of the Chamber of Commerce to serve for a year and duly authorized as the active representative to get new members, collect membership fee of $1.00 and the monthly dues of fifty cents and any special donations interested citizens or property owners not citizens may choose to make. You may become a life member by paying $25.00 and be forever exempt from paying any monthly dues. Why not now? Help make this year Glendale's banner year in many respects. Many people would like to come here to live, even if their business be in Los Angeles, or some neighboring city. Between the good transportation offered by the electric railroads, the jitneys and private auto cars business and home do not need to be so near together as formerly. Don't you know some one you could induce to come here to live? Be a booster.

There is a great deal the Chamber of Commerce might do for Glendale, and therefore for all the citizens of Glendale, including you, your own self, if you, the people, will take hold with us and each one do even a little. Within a few months there ought not to be a vacant store, dwelling or living room in the whole city of Glendale. On the contrary, the contractors and builders of Glendale ought to be working over time to get ready all the homes for the new residents who, as we hope and believe, will be locating in Glendale. If "you-all" do your part also that program of prosperity will not have been overstated. Your part is up to you. Nobody else can do it for you; besides, it is hoped that everybody else will have all he or she can do to rightly do his or her own part of the needed work for our mutual betterment. Is not that fair?

A temporary office for the Chamber of Commerce has just been secured at No. 1111 Broadway in the office of the Montrose railroad. It is central, convenient, and has both telephones at our service. The new president of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. W. J. Clendenin, and the new secretary will be there some part of every day except Sunday and will be glad to answer any questions and give what information is available regarding the City of Glendale and the work and plans of the Chamber of Commerce. Instead of you waiting for some other word or a visit from the secretary, why not save time and help the cause along by writing or seeing the secretary and giving your name for membership.

That would give the secretary more time for other duties and particularly for seeing and talking with other citizens not so prompt to respond to this plea for co-operation as you would be.

Better things are coming for Glendale. Why not lend a hand and hurry up their welcomed coming?

God helps those most who help themselves best.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The attendance at both the morning and evening services was unusually large.

Rev. Miles B. Fisher, who spoke at the morning service, gave a most interesting and enlightening address on "The Importance of Religious Education." The speaker made a plea for more systematic and intelligent study of the Bible.

Mr. Fisher described the North Dakota plan which provides for credit in the public schools for the proper study of the Bible. The Gary, Indiana, plan which provides for Bible instruction given under the direction of the church during the public school hours, and the daily vacation Bible school which affords an opportunity for the study of the Bible during school vacations.

The speaker considered all these movements indicated that the careful study of the Bible is considered essential for the moral and intellectual training of the youth.

At the evening service Dr. Willisford gave a most helpful gospel sermon on "Jesus the Shepherd." It was shown how Jesus is the provider and protector of the spiritual needs of men.

The pastor closed with an earnest and warm plea for all to enter the fold of "the Good Shepherd."

Miss Dorothy Bonnell sang with much acceptance "Though I Have Failed" and played "An Autumn Song." Her many friends rejoice with her in her remarkable recovery.

Next Sunday morning Mrs. Gladys Gibbs Sherman will sing and Miss Doris Packer will read at the evening service.

Dr. L. H. Hurtt, whose office is at 660 W. Broadway, has returned from a few weeks' visit in San Diego where he went for a vacation and rest.

The Epworth league of the Tropico M. E. church gave a Valentine social in the social hall of the church following the regular business meeting on Friday night. The time was spent in games and merriment crowded every moment. Miss Edna Phillips won the prize for cutting the best heart out of cardboard blindfolded. A contest was held to see which could make the best Valentine out of the materials furnished and Miss Marion Kennedy carried off this prize. The refreshments consisted of apple pie, cheese and coffee. Each girl brought a pie and after every one had eaten all the pie of which they were capable seven pies remained undisposed of. So these were auctioned off by Rodger Baker and Will Marple, the highest prices received being $1.70 and $1.55. The seven pies were sold for $4.50. Three of the pies auctioned were then donated to the league and were cut and sold at a nickel a piece.

ART AND TRAVEL SECTION VISIT ROME

The ruins of Rome were visited Monday afternoon by the Art and Travel section of the Tuesday Afternoon club. These Art and Travel studies have gone far beyond the expectation of the members of the section. They are traveling through Italy, stopping at all places of historic interest, and Mrs. C. M. Turck, curator, makes a splendid guide and interpreter. Mr. and Mrs. Turck have been abroad many times studying languages, art, political conditions, history and ruins.

At the regular meeting Monday Mrs. Percy De Gaston read a carefully prepared paper on the Forums of Rome. A brief description of the forum built by Julius Caesar and the one by Augustus Caesar was given and the market places were also described. Mrs. Whitcomb read a paper on Hadrian who was perhaps the ablest of all the emperors of Rome, being an artist, poet, philosopher, general and statesman. A brief description of Hadrian's tomb situated on the bank of the Tiber and known as the castle of St. Angelo was given.

Mrs. Turck described the Pantheon which was an original pagan temple restored by Hadrian during his splendid reign. It was fully consecrated a Christian edifice and named Santa Maria Rotunda. It is the resting place of the kings and Raphael and his sweetheart are buried there. Descriptions of a number of historic churches were given. Photographs were shown of the crypt where the Capuchian monks are buried in soil brought from Jerusalem. After being interred for ten years they are exhumed and their bones used for wall decorations, chandeliers, etc. The idea is unpleasant, but the effect is artistic. The photographs shown are from the collection of over one thousand views collected by Mr. Turck during his travels abroad.

The ladies who were privileged to take this journey were landed safely in the cheery Turck home, 521 N. Glendale avenue, Tropico, which was decorated with carnations and greenery. Tea and cake were served while the Victrola sent forth the beautiful tenor tones of Caruso. The ladies departed reluctantly, each member expressing sincere appreciation for the privilege of the profitable study of the ruins of Rome.

CHURCH ELECTED SECRETARY

W. L. Church of 1423 Hawthorne street is the newly elected secretary and general manager of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Church is a newcomer in this city and is not supposed to know saint from sinner, so there is an opportunity for all citizens from now on to so conduct themselves that Secretary Church will classify them as saints.

However this may be, Mr. Church is a good organizer, and since he will devote all of his time to promoting the interests of the Chamber there will be something doing ere long. His office is in the front room of the Glendale-Montrose railway office at 1111 West Broadway. Step in and say how-do-you-do and thus get acquainted with the new secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. You will receive a cordial welcome.

GLENDALE GARDEN SOCIETY

The usual monthly meeting of the Garden society will be held Thursday evening of this week, February 15, at 8 o'clock, in the library of the Third street school. Arrangements will be made for the first floral contest of 1917 to be held in March. Tea will be served and music enjoyed. Ernest Braunton says of the Garden Society in the Times Magazine of Feb. 10: "If outside cities and towns wish to take up an improvement move that will tend toward the upbuild of the community as a beautiful and attractive place of residence they should copy after the plan and activities of the Glendale Garden Society. Write to M. E. Caruthers, secretary, for a 1917 program." Thanks, Mr. Braunton, much obliged. Nanno Woods, president; Morris E. Caruthers, secretary.

LINCOLN DAY CELEBRATED

Monday afternoon the Parent-Teacher association of the Central Avenue school celebrated the birthday of Lincoln at the school with a very appropriate program. "America" was sung by the pupils of the school as the opening number on the program, followed by a piano solo played by Helen Dimick. Donald Dewey, one of the pupils, then presented a bust of Dewey to the school. This bust was purchased with the Lincoln pennies saved by the pupils so it was a proud occasion for them. After the bust, which was draped with an American flag, had been uncovered with a pretty little presentation speech by Master Donald, the following papers were read by the sixth grade scholars: "Lincoln's Boyhood," by Frances Wyman; "Lincoln's Manhood" by Kathleen Campbell; "Lincoln as a Statesman" by Lois Olmstead; selections from Second Inaugural Address by Frederick Newlin; "George Gray Barnard's Statue of Lincoln" by Imogen Farrell; poem, entitled "Lincoln," Cornelia Wilson. The songs "Lincoln," and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," were sung by the fourth grade pupils. Mrs. H. V. Davis of Los Angeles gave a very impressive talk on "Patriotism." She is a splendid speaker and gave many good thoughts concerning Lincoln as well as many clear, practical ideas on patriotism. At the close of the program refreshments were served to all the school children and the members of the association and a very pleasing and satisfactory afternoon ended for all present.

NATIONAL FORESTS FOR RECREATION

That over a million and a half of people use the national forests as playgrounds each year was the statement made by Henry S. Graves, chief of forest service, before the American Forestry Association recently. "Located as they are," said Mr. Graves, "the national forests comprise many regions of superb scenery and unexcelled recreation attraction. In a very real sense these attractions of the forests constitute a natural resource that must be safeguarded, utilized and developed."

Mr. Graves stated that a quarter of a century had passed since the establishment of the first national forests by a law which marked the beginning of a new and more enlightened method of public land administration. The nineteenth century land system, he said, was one wholly of land distribution, which was successful as applied to agricultural lands, but unsuccessful as applied to non-agricultural lands chiefly valuable for growing timber. The keynote of the present-day policy is to secure such a disposition, use and development of the public lands as will render a maximum service to the public. "The country has recognized that public lands of chief value for forest purposes and essential to protect water resources should remain under public control," Mr. Graves continued. "The struggle is now on as to who shall own and control the public water power sites, the coal, oil, phosphate and potassium deposits and the common grazing lands that are not suited to development by individuals under any of the homestead laws."

Eleven states in the east have invited the government to establish national forests in their borders by purchase of mountain lands, while others have inaugurated a policy of acquiring state forests. Underlying this movement is the recognized principle that there are public interests in mountain forests that cannot be safeguarded under private ownership. Private ownership of timberlands has been for the most part speculative and temporary in character. When public interests are involved the public must protect itself by direct ownership, co-operation and ultimately a measure of regulation."

More and more of the larger private holdings are being posted with "No Trespassing" signs, Mr. Graves said, and are closed to the public. "The closing of private lands points to the value of publicly owned forest lands where people living in cities and hot agricultural regions can find an opportunity for the refreshment and recreation that can be secured by a sojourn in the forests."

Innumerable localities on the national forests, which are not generally known, have a wealth of scenic beauty, Mr. Graves said. A very practical problem, he stated, is that of opening up and making these great public properties available for as wide use as possible by people of little means as well as by the wealthy.

"In the national forests of Colorado alone, there were last summer 676,000 visitors. Thousands came in automobiles and used the roads built by the forest service under the law which provides that ten per cent of all receipts of the national forests shall be spent for road and trail building.

"The recreation features of the national forests are fostered in a variety of ways. Areas of scenic value are set aside as camping sites and are withdrawn from any use which would reduce their beauty. Roads and trails are built by the forest service to open up points of scenic interest, streams are stocked with fish and sites for summer homes can be leased for long periods."

About 25,000 miles of trails and 3000 miles of roads have been built on the forests, Mr. Graves stated. "Congress has appropriated a special fund of ten million dollars for road building on the national forests, which will become available at the rate of a million dollars a year. This money, added to the quarter of a million dollars now annually available from the receipts of the forests, will result in opening up many regions now inaccessible for industrial use and also for recreation.

"In developing the recreational resources of the forests we are planing systematically and far ahead. Problems of landscape and sanitary engineering present themselves in large numbers and we have associated with us a distinguished landscape engineer to guide our work. Our system of scenic highways when worked out will be comprehensive in character, and ultimately routes of tourist travel will be furnished with comfortable hotels and rest houses. This development will be of great economic importance to the local communities, both on account of the added business which the tourist trade will bring and the permanent improvements which will be made."

Says the Azusa Pomotropic: A curious condition has come about in the local coal market from the fact that it has been the orange growers of this vicinity who have averted a coal famine. While dealers could only get promises from the mines for the delivery of fuel, some local orange growers offered for sale a stock of coal which they have kept for use in smudging.

SOPHOMORE VALENTINE DANCE

The Valentine dance given by the sophomores of the high school was one of the most delightful social affairs the younger folks have held this year. The decorations were pretty, all being suggestive of the Valentine season. Red hearts were strung around the electric lights and streamers of red crepe paper were strung from the lights to the corners of the hall. The Barbary Coast orchestra furnished the music for dancing and forty couples were in the grand march which was led by Miss Cecilia Lyon and Milton Brown. The patronesses were Mrs. C. R. Carmack and Mrs. L. E. Lyons, and Robert Carmack had charge of the arrangements for the dance. Mrs. Keller and John Duerer gave an exhibition fox trot, which was a combination of fancy steps originated by Mrs. Keller and dedicated by her to the high school paper named "The Explosion." Mrs. Keller then offered a prize to the one copying this dance the best and Miss Nettie Wervie was the successful one in winning the prize offered, a box of candy. Fruit punch was served and the young people merrily danced away the hours until midnight when they dispersed to their homes well satisfied with the success of their dance and the good time enjoyed.

POTATOES AS FOOD

The general use of potatoes in the average family and the better customs prevailing in many homes in preparing the tubers for food are based on sound economic and dietetic reasons, according to specialists of the office of home economics of the United States department of agriculture. Studies of the preparation and use of potatoes as food are found in department of agriculture bulletin No. 468, recently issued.

Potatoes are easy to cook in a variety of ways. From the point of view of dietetics, they furnish starch in one readily digestible form, contain mineral substances of importance to the body, and—a fact less generally known—tend to make the tissues and fluids of the body alkaline, so counteracting the tendency of meats, eggs, fish and like foods to create acid conditions. Since the body does its work best when its condition is either neutral or slightly alkaline, potatoes, like most vegetables, perform an important function in the diet besides furnishing energy producing material. This scientific fact justifies the custom that is prevalent in many families of serving a goodly supply of potatoes or other vegetables with each helping of meat.

Potatoes, however, while a valuable addition to a mixed diet, alone are not suited to meet the needs of the body because of their poverty in proteins and fat. Of these latter important elements protein is furnished in meats, eggs, fish, milk, beans and similar foods, and fat in butter, bacon, table oils and the fats and oils used in cookery.

Greater care than is commonly exercised should be taken in peeling potatoes. Very often 20 per cent of the potato is pared away. This results not only in the loss of one of the most valuable portions of the tuber, since the soluble mineral salts are present in the material near the skin, which would be removed and thrown away. These salts can be preserved by a more careful removal of the skin, as by shallow paring or rubbing, and also by boiling or baking the potatoes in their jackets.

Paring before boiling, however, may be the most desirable method of cooking potatoes which through an undue exposure to light may have acquired a bitter taste, or those which have been kept until late in the spring, since in this way more of the disagreeable flavor is eliminated. Such potatoes may also be soaked before cooking.

While these methods may be desirable with potatoes which have been exposed to the light, they result in the loss of considerable food value without compensating advantages when applied to new or well matured potatoes. If such potatoes are boiled after paring, they should be dropped into boiling water instead of being placed on the stove in cold water. By the latter method there is twice the loss of protein, or tissue building elements resulting from the former. The loss of mineral matter is about the same by each method. There is no loss of starchy material in boiling unless portions of the tuber break off.

Practically the only loss when potatoes are baked in their skins is of the water which escapes as steam. The more or less common custom of pricking holes in the skin of baked potatoes or breaking them is explained by the fact that unless the steam which is formed inside the skin is allowed to escape it will change back into water and produce sogginess.

Potatoes which have turned green and sprouting tubers have present a considerable quantity of sodium, an acrid poisonous substance which, though not dangerous in the quantities ordinarily met with, gives a disagreeable flavor. It is best, therefore, to avoid such potatoes or to cut out green or sprouting portions.

GOD IS NOT A MONSTER TO TORMENT WICKED MEN, SAYS EVANGELIST KNOX

No wicked person will ever lie "red hot, asbestos-like" in the eternal torment of hell throughout endless ages, the sport of demons, for that is not the sort of punishment the Bible tells about, according to Evangelist Philip L. Knox, who spoke at Evangel hall, 115 South San Fernanda road, Saturday night on the subject, "Hell, Where Is It; How Long Will It Burn?" He remarked that even the government is satisfied with the execution of the criminal, and that we must not suppose God to be a merciless monster, who would take delight in the suffering of his creatures. He then read to his hearers the statement of Ezekiel 33:11, "As I live, saith the Lord, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live."

"According to the Bible," said Mr. Knox, "hell is not burning now, and the only hell there is, is the fire which will literally melt the earth at the day of judgment. Second Peter 3:7 says that "the heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men.'

"The Bible brings to view two resurrections, one at the coming of Christ, the other one thousand years afterward. John, writing in the 20th chapter of the Apocalyse, the 5th and 6th verses, tells of this 1000 years, and says that in addition to the righteous, 'the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousands years were finished. Continuing he says, 'Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power.' The chapter goes on to say that the wicked having been brought to life again, Satan goes out to deceive them, and that they camp about the city of God. 'And fire came down from God out of heaven and devoured them. And the devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone.'

"It is the same fire that consumes the earth that will destroy the wicked. Obadiah 1:16 says of them that 'they shall be as though they had not been.' Again in Psalms 37:10 we read that 'yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be.'

"'But the wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs: they shall consume; into smoke shall they consume away,' is the statement of the 20th verse. Does that sound as though they would live in torment forever, 'asbestos-like?' Does 'perish' mean to live forever in torture? Does 'consume' mean to continue to exist? No, it means complete destruction, annihilation. God says the wicked will consume. Some men say they will be forever unconsumed. Who will you believe?

"'Behold the day cometh that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble: and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch,' says Malachi 4:1. Those of you who have seen the fire sweep over a large stubble field, know how quickly it burns. We are told in the Bible that this is the second death, and that sin, sorrow, pain and misery will never again exist in the world or in the universe. Revelation 21 makes this very plain.

"God is not a monster to torment wicked men. He loves them in spite of their waywardness. But if they continue in rebellion against him he cannot introduce rebellion into the government of the new earth, and he will be compelled to blot them from existence; to make them as though they had not been. But those who are willing to be done with evil, who are willing to cease transgressing God's law, will be given a home in the new earth throughout eternity. The time is coming when there will be no more funerals. There will be nothing to make the heart sad, for the terrible conditions now existing in the world are to have an end."

Miss Susine Wessels rendered a violin solo Saturday night, accompanied by Prof. George B. Miller. A soprano solo was given by Mrs. Celian Andross. Evangelists Knox and Andross raised a purse of $20 at Evangel hall Saturday night for the benefit of a Tropico family made destitute through sickness.

Tonight at 7:45 Pastor G. A. Snyder of the Glendale Seventh-day Adventist church will speak on "The United States in Prophecy."

and daughters. Why are not the rest of the characters in the Bible like the Christ. They are as we are, too human. Why are not the messages of others in the Bible like his? Men only see half lights. No religious teacher has measured truth as he measured it. You cannot afford to skate along on a half truth. Hear Him, "I came not to do mine own will, but the will of Him that sent me." "I and my Father are one."

There are only two reasons for the Christ and his message. (1) They mark a full revelation of God. (2) They were given because of men's interest in them. They are more important to you than is anything else. Some men study the weather reports more than their Bibles. But it is more important that Christ shall reign in your lives than that it shall rain upon your garden. Some people keep in touch with the market quotations, but the value of produce is nothing compared to the value of your soul.

I know a little woman who watches the market quotations on eggs. She is a wise little woman, she deals in eggs. You deal in life and its destiny. Christ never colored his message that men might understand it; He lived it. And He is able to keep you from falling. He is able to uphold you. You can have divine strength for your every need. "Now unto Him who is able to keep you from falling and to present you faultless before the presence of His Glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Savior, be glory and majesty, dominion and power both now and ever." Judge 24:25.

The subject for Mr. Snudden's sermon this evening will be "God's Surprises for Strange Adventures or One Authority."

NEW THOUGHT ANNIVERSARY

Sunday at the New Thought Center, Masonic temple, an all-day meeting was held, this being the first anniversary of the Center, which was formed February 6, 1916, at Masonic temple with six Glendale people present and several visitors from Hollywood, with Dr. Harold Palmer of Long Beach, vice president International New Thought Alliance, officiating. On account of the small number present at this meeting and the largeness of the hall it was decided not to continue the meetings at Masonic temple, but to look for a smaller hall. As no smaller hall was available for several weeks the Center held their meetings at the different homes of those interested in the movement. Then the Center rented Labor hall where they met for four or five weeks, changing to Butler hall, where they continued to hold their meetings until the last Sunday in December, 1916. As the Center grew in vital strength and spiritual understanding they realized the need of a more comfortable place to meet and unfold the larger work. Those who saw keenly and heard clearly knew this greater work was already manifest in spirit. January 7, 1917, the change was made back to Masonic temple, just eleven months after the Center was formed at that place. The 11th of February being the first Sunday after the 6th, our anniversary date, the Center met in three sessions, 11 o'clock a. m., 3 and 8 p. m. with speakers from Los Angeles, Hollywood and Long Beach. Short and interesting talks on the different New Thought topics were given at each session, with special music and beautiful floral decorations. With many kind friends of New Thought from Los Angeles, Long Beach, Pasadena, Hollywood, Tropico and Glendale each session passed off in harmonious vibrations of love, peace and good will to all.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Rev. Walter E. Edmonds preached Sunday morning another of the series of sermons based on the life of Elijah, taking for his text a clause in the 9th verse of the 17th chapter of Second Kings, "Arise, get thee to Zaraphath," the injunction given to the prophet when the Lord told him to go abide with the widow at that place, the meaning of which is "smelting furnace." There was a wall of protection around about Elijah who always had God's protection because he always obeyed. When the Lord commands us that we go down into the furnace it is not for us to question, but to obey. God has not ceased to rear a wall of protection over those who obey him. In 1775 a young soldier at Braddocks Field was in the thickest of the fight and indeed was made a special target by Indian sharpshooters but there was a wall of protection about him and he was saved to do great things and to be called the father of his country."

Elijah had lived for a year by the brook Cherith and had been fed by the ravens there, but he had seen the brook dry up and at a time when he might have well been discouraged he received the order and obeyed. Zaraphath was a barren place in a barren time and the widow there one of its poorest inhabitants, but the prophet obeyed and found there an abundance for all their needs. All of us need to go down into the furnace of trial, to have burned out our pride, our spirit of independence and we shall come out purified. You will not be called to go without God's protection, but do not go until He sends for you; many are misled by false ideas of God's wishes. We should live always in an earnest endeavor to learn God's will and when that is made clear we should go forward without questioning. The little family at Zaraphath did not live entirely or at all on the measure of meal and the cruse of oil; they lived on the Word of God.

FOUND

Many of the enlisted men on the border would do almost anything to get home. One man was found walking about camp, picking up and looking at every scrap of paper, muttering continually, "Nope that ain't it, that ain't it." He was finally judged insane and given a discharge. Upon receiving the discharge all filled in, he turned to the officer with a grin:

"Yep, that's it."
